What is Euro grey tempered glass?

Euro grey toughened glass is a type of tinted glass that has been treated with thermal tempering to increase its strength and durability. This process involves rapidly heating the glass to over 600 degrees Celsius then cooling it quickly. The result is a much stronger piece of glass than untreated float glass, making it an ideal choice for many applications including safety glazing, windows, doors, partition and furniture.

Discover the Advantages of euro grey tinted glass

Additionally, the metal oxides added during production give Euro grey glass its unique grey colouring. As such, it can be used as an attractive alternative to clear float glass where desired. Euro grey toughened glass is highly resistant to scratches, abrasion and impact damage which further enhances its suitability for use in wide range of situations. Ultimately, Euro grey toughened glass offers a strong and attractive aesthetic solution to many different glazing applications.
