

10mm+10mm PDLC white laminated glass combination of sound insulation and privacy function

If you're looking for a window solution that offers both sound insulation and privacy, look no further than 10mm+10mm PDLC white laminated glass. This type of glass is perfect for office buildings, hospitals, or any other type of commercial space where noise reduction is important. Plus, the privacy function of the laminated glass will give you the peace of mind you need knowing that your confidential meetings are safe from prying eyes.

Why choose PDLC white laminated glass

If your workplace demands both sound insulation and privacy without sacrificing aesthetic appeal, then 10mm+10mm PDLC white laminated glass is the perfect choice. This laminated glass partition provides a sleek and modern look but with the advantage of noise reduction and privacy.

How is PDLC laminated glass produced?

By combining two 10mm laminated glass sheets with a charged film laminate between them, these partitions have superior noise-reducing capabilities while still allowing for natural light to be filtered through. Additionally, the laminated glass can be switched between transparent and opaque settings; letting you adjust it depending on needed levels of visibility and privacy. All in all, opting for laminated glass is an ideal solution for workplaces that need an effective combination of sound insulation and privacy.

It can be used in various office applications, such as partitions, doors, windows, etc

Acoustic glazing offers a range of acoustic and visual benefits for office applications. It is especially beneficial for a variety of partitions, such as walls, doors, windows, and other acoustic enclosures. In addition to acoustic control and noise reduction capabilities, acoustic glazing also has the advantage of developing acoustic comfort that can be crucial for conversations or meetings within confined areas. Furthermore, it also provides privacy and security with clear screen visibility from both sides. With acoustic glazing, businesses are able to enhance their acoustic environment while retaining the sunlight in their office spaces.

Shenzhen Dragon Glass's competitive advantage

Historical experience: 27 years of glass manufacturing and exporting experience. There are as many as 80 exporting countries, and the export experience is vast.

Quality and Service: High quality, high service level capability.

Price: Great prices and reasonable payment terms.

Production and Shipping: We can guarantee the delivery time and complete the delivery in the shortest time.

Reserve of talents: Excellent skilled workers, professional sales team.